

Effective July 1, 2016, achievement of a satisfactory score on the Praxis Core will no longer be required as a state certification requirement. However, Educator Preparation Programs in Connecticut must ensure that candidates take the Praxis Core Mathematics, Reading, and

Fairfield University will continue to use the existing passing standards for each test, outlined in the chart. Candidates who do not have passing scores on one or more sections of the test may be required to remediate any deficient area. Remediation may include re-taking and passing the sections that were not passed, taking additional coursework, or other remediation
