About Fair eld University

Steeped in Jesuit tradition, Fair eld University's approach to education is rigorous and thorough, with a blend of theoretical and applied learn   -   ing that prepares individuals to change the world for the better. Fair eld's master's and certi cation programs are dynamic with small class settings, support, convenience, and exibility for working adults.

Internship application deadlines:

• Applications for the teacher internship program are reviewed on a roll   -   ing basis following admission to a master's degree program. Generally, internship placements are made for the fall, beginning in September, although spring internships are sometimes available.

Assistantships and nancial aid:

•

THE INTERNSHIP FOR NON-CERTIFIED TEACHERS

The internship for non-certified teachers provides prospective teachers with an opportunity to do field work in their future profession while pursuing a master's degree or a certificate of advanced study and a concurrent program leading to state certification. This program is offered to graduate students in several certification programs.

The responsibilities of the non-certified interns differ according to placement. They include substituting, small group instruction, individual instruction, or assisting in the classroom. In the elementary school setting, interns may be assigned to a mentor teacher in order to gain exposure to an exemplary teacher.

In return for the non-certified intern's work in the school, the school district deposits up to $15,000 with Fairfield University. This amount is banked for interns to draw upon for graduate courses taken iI()25(en withw)ate courses cipo ste cour of the to sta, durncurrent program85(o)-1( )19.9C 55.5C TdJ EMTFDC 0 9.25 27 524 T*n'enerllernship for non-cer85(.)-1( )]TJ EMC /Span-1.a TD [(or a>>BDC quirncur <</MCID 51 >>BDct